TO THE
DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE.

FARMINGTON, CONN.

THE compiler of this Genealogy will in few words explain why she has undertaken a work of this kind, belonging, as it seems to her, more to a person accustomed to literary labor than to one who had never written a line for the press.

The collection of material for a Genealogy was begun about 1850, by her father, CHARLES LEE, of Norwich, Conn., for his own pleasure, and continued at intervals until his death, in 1865. Three or four years since, Rev. SAMUEL LEE, of New Ipswich, N. H., was very desirous that she who had been her father's helper, should take it up, adding what could be gathered, to bring it down to the present time. The beloved father's love for the work, and her love and veneration for him, were the only reasons for consenting to finish and publish it.

You now have the little book; excuse the errors you will no doubt find, and judge it leniently. She will feel amply rewarded for all the trouble and labor it has cost her, if some one better qualified is incited by its perusal to make a more interesting and perfect history of the FARMINGTON LEEs.

To all those who have promptly and kindly aided me by letter or otherwise, grateful thanks are here returned.

Particular mention should be made of the following, each of whom have given very full records of the branches to which they belong: the assistance and encouragement of the first two, has been of great service to me all through the preparation of this work.

NOTE TO THE READER.

IN naming a generation, I have followed the custom of the last generation, and will address the succeeding ones by the same name, and so on. Under every generation, I have placed the names of the individuals, in the order of their birth, and the names of the children, in the order of their birth, and the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and so on, until a line of descent is reached, from which no further line of descent is shown.

I have also placed the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and so on, until a line of descent is reached, from which no further line of descent is shown.

OF MAY, the 18th, 1860, I have placed the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and so on, until a line of descent is reached, from which no further line of descent is shown.

I have also placed the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and the names of the children of the children, in the order of their birth, and so on, until a line of descent is reached, from which no further line of descent is shown.

INTRODUCTION.

LEE OF ENGLISH HISTORY.

THE name first appears as Lega, DeLee, gradually taking the present form, Lee. In the "Doomsday Book," "Legga," and "Lee" are often used to denote the same family. The word "Lee" signifies "meadow, pasture, or grass land." Previous to the use of surnames, persons were designated by the place of their residence, or some epithet descriptive of their personal character. The family of Lee is one of the most ancient in the records of English history. In the eleventh century, the name of Launcelot Lees is recorded with William the Conqueror, and is of Norman origin, and in the divisions of the estates by that chieftain, a fine estate in Essex was bestowed upon him.

HUGH LEE "raised a company of gentlemen cavaliers," at the head of which he accompanied Richard Coeur de Leon in the third crusade, A. D. 1192. For gallant conduct at the siege of Acre he was made "Earl of Litchfield," and another estate was given to the family, which was later called "Ditilly." They were devoted followers of the Stuarts, and distinguished for their loyalty to the Crown, and for their acts of valor received various honors and distinctions. Two of the name have been Knights of the Garter, and their banners, surmounted by the "Lee Arms," may be seen in St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

The "Lee Arms" consist of a shield, bend sinister, battled and embattled: crest, a closed visor, surmounted by a squirrel, holding a nut, with the motto, "Non incautus futuri."

Sir HENRY LEE, of "Quarenden Bucks," was created "Earl of Litchfield," May 22, 1611. He was succeeded by his son, Sir EDWARD HENRY LEE, in 1674, and he by his son, Sir GEORGE HENRY LEE, Feb. 13, 1716.

An old volume of English history, which gives the derivations of names, mentions that the family of "JOHN LEE, of Lee Hall," Parish of Wibenbury, County of Chester, sometimes spelled the name Lee, Lea and Leigh.

We find that a John de Lee, Knight of Essex, was sent to Parliament, A. D. 1307.

THOMAS, son of John Lee, bequeaths to his eldest son the paternal estate near "Pebehull," an ancient village in Shropshire, now extinct. John, or Johannes Lee, is mentioned frequently in parliamentary writs of Edward II.

RICHARD LEE, third son of Launcelot Lee, of Cotton, emigrated to America about the year 1641. This Richard is the ancestor of the Virginia Lees.

The tradition and circumstances of our ancestor, John, and Richard, both being from Essex County, England, one emigrating in 1634, the other in 1641, are the only reasons that can now be assumed that they were of the same origin.

A correspondent of one of our family in London, Rev. Frederic George Lee, a distinguished clergyman of the Church of England, has interested himself in our efforts to obtain something authentic as to the birth place of our ancestor, and has kindly furnished us with many interesting facts as to the family name in England. He has in his possession, upon parchment, in Latin, the pedigree of his family from a very early period, down to 1629. This can be found in the London Genealogist, April, 1876, and is copied in this work from one sent by the above named gentleman to Mr. Wm. H. Lee, of New York. The link wanting to connect our ancestor with the English family must be found—if found at all—in the years from 1629 to 1634.

The uncertainties of such researches are best expressed in the words of Mr. Albert Welles, President of the "American College of Heraldry," in his introduction to the Welles Genealogy, and is as follows:

"It is stated among the Librarians and officers of Historical Collections in the United States that no depository of the inquiries ~~suited~~ ^{suited} to establishing the ~~union~~ ^{union} between the ancestors here and the family abroad. Most of the emigrants fled from religious persecution, and, instead of promulgating their creed or history, rather suppressed all knowledge of it, so that their descendants had no direct traditions. On this account it becomes necessary to give the descent separately, of each of the original emigrants to this country, with a general account of the family abroad, as far as it can be learned from history, which is trusting too much to tradition, which, however, is often the only source of information on these matters."

Henry Lee,	{ In the "Happy Re- turn," for London, Lee Rand, Commander, Oct. 28, 1679.

From the city records of Leyden, Holland, among the lists of names, mostly natives of the eastern coast of England, especially Essex County, and Colchester, there were Samuel and Bridget Lee, the latter a daughter of Joos Lee.² These came to New England and settled there.

There is no evidence that either the Pilgrims from Leyden, or those that left for St. Christopher's and the Barbadoes, were in any way related to our ancestor, John Lee. But is it not probable that of the emigrants to these islands many found their way to New England, where they could enjoy religious liberty, and that from these men have come some of the families of the name of Lee in other parts of Connecticut, and in Massachusetts, Vermont and New Jersey? It is historical that many of the emigrants to the West India Islands finally settled in New England.

VIRGINIA LEES.

IN 1642, RICHARD LEE, third son of Edward Lee, came out to Virginia as Secretary of the Colonial Governor, Lord Fairfax, and finally settled at York, on the James River, in 1647. He was among the pioneers of the Lees of Virginia; and, as he wrote in his will, "late of Strafford-Langton, County of Essex, England," and of the Lee family of Cotton, near "Bridgworth," the seat of Lambert Lee. There is no satisfactory documentary evidence to show a family connection of the Hartford County Lees with those of Virginia, but it is clear that they were both from Essex County, England, and it has always been a tradition that they were the same to their English origin. There were very different motives in the emigrants leaving for Virginia and those settling in New England.

The New England Pilgrims were Puritans and Non-conformists, who came for the purpose of finding religious liberty and prosperity. The Virginia Lees were born adherents of the Stuarts and Cavaliers, and the emigrant, Richard Lee, left for America under a commission from the Crown.

In order to understand fully the character of the Pilgrims who were leaving their homes, many, indeed nearly all, males just entering upon manhood, and but few past the meridian of life, it is necessary to become familiar with the persecutions and sufferings they endured in the wars of Charles I., and the severity of Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, in his hatred of heretics. Essex County, and especially Colchester, was the stronghold of dissenters from the days of Walsby, and particularly so in the sixteenth century.

It is not purposed in this memorial to pass judgment upon the religious parties, all of whom had adherents from every rank and station in life, but simply record the facts as they are now received and understood.

In a publication called "King and Commonwealth," by Corderey & Phillpotts, (London, 1875,) there is given much that is new from the archives of recently discovered evidence. Especially does it show that in the wars of that eventful period the three religious bodies, viz: Churchmen, Presbyterians and Independents, were the distinctive divisions in the thirty years' conflict, and not the Royalists, as against those in rebellion to the Crown.

In the above memoranda, and considerations as here set forth, our design only to put in this work something suggestive, as the result of searches made, in hopes that it may be put into a better shape by abler hands, and perhaps stimulate others interested in the name to endeavor to find evidence of their origin, and so to trace the connection, if any, of the different settlers of that name and period.

It is with great satisfaction that in the exhumed and simple inscription found upon the rough stone originally placed over the grave of John Lee, in the burial ground at Farmington,* corresponding as it does with the church and family records extant, we have the very best proof of not only the place of his burial, but also conclusive testimony of the date of his departure from his native land, and of his subsequent abode, from the time of his arrival in his adopted country, to the date of his death. There is, therefore, good reason to believe, there are undiscovered records and headstones of some of the others of the name, which the "book of rolls" of the British archives, record as having left for New England and the West India Islands, and hence these names are put in this work.

In all genealogical researches, going back to the time of the settlement of New England by the Pilgrims, there is no record that can be only conjecture. The Parish Records of England in the war were imperfect, and often destroyed, and in the thirty years of devastation a whole generation passed away, and another nursed in straits and warfare, took their places. Very few of the original settlers were possessed of much, or any property, and had but little to expect of those they left behind: so that of those in the war of the Revolution who became eminent, like Washington, Adams, and Jefferson, there is but little known of their English parentage or history.

The Lees, from the time of the Norman conquest, were distinguished in their various callings, and we have perhaps, as satisfactory an account of our English ancestors as almost any family emigrating as early as 1634.

When JOHN LEES left his home for the new world, the city of London was a city of renown and commerce, but with a population of only 500,000; and the next city in numbers was Bristol, with a population not much exceeding our own Norwich, at this date. Sheffield, with a population of 2000, Leeds, 3000, and Manchester, 4000, were just coming into importance as manufacturing towns, respectively, of cutlery, woolens, cottons, etc.

Education, so as to read, write, etc., was the exception, not the rule. But few of the streets of London and the great thoroughfares were paved, and then only with the smallest of cobble-stones. Coaches had just come into use. In judging of the men of those days we have to take into account the condition of society at the time, the conventional rules and habits of the people, and the want of the advantages common to all now; and then we can have a better appreciation of our forefathers.

NEW ENGLAND LEEs.

Among the early emigrants to New England there are several of the name of Lee, who are not connected, as we can find, with the Farnington family.

1. JOHN LEECH, "a yeoman son of an honest and honorable family of Bruton St. London," described "as a person of good natural and acquired abilities, and in the bloom of life." In the "difficult times in 1635," he came to New England and settled in "Akwam," now Ipswich, in Essex County, Mass. He married, and had sons and daughters. He died at Ipswich in 1671. "His two sons, John and Joseph, by agreement began in 1677, to write their names Lee," and from this it is inferred they spelled Lee in one both ways. A branch of this family settled in Barry, Mass. The late Gideon Lee, ex-mayor of New York, was an honored descendant of this family.

2. WALTER LEE appears on the town records of Westfield, Mass., as early as 1660, and the name continues for more than a century, and then disappears. This Walter is supposed to be the one who was made a "freeman" at Hartford, in May, 1651.

3. Another family are descended from THOMAS LEE, of Boston, Mass., who married in 1700, Deborah Flint. His mother's name was Martha Mellows, a grand daughter of Oliver Mellows, one of the first settlers of Boston and Braintree. Thus Martha Mellows has

and her first husband, Deane Winthrop, son of the Governor. The Lees of Boston, Salem, Cambridge and Beverly, belong mainly to this branch.

4. THOMAS LEE, with his family, and the father of his wife, a Mr. Brown, left England in 1641; he died on the passage to this country, and his wife and children landed at Saybrook, Conn. From the sons of this family the Lees of Lyme, Guilford, Saybrook, etc., are descended.

FARMINGTON LEES.

JOHN LEE left home a youth thirteen years of age, a ward of William Westwoode, who, with his wife Bridget, settled first at Cambridge, then Newton, Mass., and later in Hartford, Conn. Westwoode was at once placed in important public offices, and was a man, for his time, of talents and position; and John was without doubt in some way a relative of either Westwoode or his wife, and receiving instruction from his guardians, remained a member of the family until he removed to Farmington, and his alliance with the Hart family.

William Westwoode, together with his wife Bridget and wards, John Lee and Grace Newell, left Ipswich, Eng., in the ship "Francis," the "tenth day" of April 1634, he aged 28, his wife 32. In the "records of the Colony in Massachusetts Bay," we find that he took the "freeman's oath," March 4, 1635; was sworn constable of the "Plantation of Connecticut," Sept. 5, 1635. On the third of March following he is made a member of a "Commission to govern the people 'att' Connecticut." He was one of the Hocker company that removed to Hartford in 1636, and was one of the six who composed the first court holden there April 26, 1636. His homelot, of three acres, was next Stephen Hart's. He became one of the wealthiest and most prominent of the first settlers of Hartford. He is made a member of a "commission for Hadley," May 22, 1661, and is called Mr., a title given only to persons of distinction, and with authority not given to other members "to join persons in marriage at Hadley."

He removed to Hadley in the year 1659, where he died, April 9, 1666, and 83. His wife died May 12, 1676, aged 74. They had one child Sarah, born in 1644, at Hartford. She married Aaron Cook, of Hadley, son of Aaron, of Northampton, May 30, 1661. She died March 24, 1730, aged 86 years.

Their children were:

Sarah,	born Jan. 31, 1662.
Aaron,	" about 1664. He inherited the lands of his Grandfather, in Hartford, and settled there.
Joannah,	" July 10, 1665.
Westwoode,	" March 26, 1670.
Samuel,	" Nov. 26, 1672.
Moses,	" May 5, 1675.
Lizab'eth,	" Jan. 9, 1677.
Bridget,	" March 31, 1683.

The preceding sketch shows the character of the man under whose name our ancestor was placed; and we may infer what John Lee was, from the prominent characteristics of his posterity, as we shall see them in these pages, being earnest and efficient supporters of religious institutions. Further research may bring to light his early history, his parentage and home; but it is pleasant to know that our ancestor was associated with the true and good men who laid the foundations of one of the most thriving and pleasant towns in Connecticut, and which has sent out to bless the land, her portion of reliable and distinguished men in the various departments of life. By patient industry on a farm, he acquired a handsome property for those days; professed the religion of the gospel; presented his children in baptism, and made himself useful in the sphere of life where God, in his providence, had placed him. His descendants, numerous and widely scattered, have been distinguished for enterprise, industry, liberality and success in business; respect for the laws and readiness to bear their portion of the burdens of society, civil and religious.

Farmington, where our ancestor made for himself a home, ten miles from Hartford, the State capital of Connecticut. It was originally called "The Plantation of Tunxis," from the Tunxis Indians, of whom the land was purchased. The township was fifteen miles square. In 1635, the town was incorporated and called Farmington, or, "farmingtonne," and the Tunxis River in its boundaries changed to Farmington River. The town was divided among the eighty-four proprietors, according to their respective interests.

The Congregational Church, with Roger Newton as Pastor, was organized Oct. 13, 1652. In 1658, he was dismissed, to accept a call to the older and larger Church at Branford. In July, 1661, his successor, Rev. Samuel Hooker, was installed. He was the son of Rev. Thomas Hooker, of England, and Hartford. He continued Pastor of the Church until his death, in 1697.

Stephen Hart, the father of our maternal ancestor, was chosen Deacon of the Church at its organization. He is supposed to have come from Brantree, England, with the company that settled Brantree, Mass.; that later he removed to Cambridge, (then Newtown). In 1634, he was there admitted as a "freeman." He was one of the original members, and one of the Deacons of Rev. Thomas Hooker's Church, formed at Cambridge, Mass., preparatory to the emigration of a large body of settlers to Hartford. He died at Farmington, in 1683.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE.

FARMINGTON, CONN.

I JOHN LEE, the emigrant, was born in Essex County, England, about 1620; came to New England in 1634; removed to Hartford, Conn., in 1635. He was one of the second company from Hartford, that settled Farmington in 1641. He married, in 1638, Mary, daughter of Deacon Stephen Hart; born in 1635. He and his wife united with the Church at Farmington, July 15, 1660. He died Aug. 8, 1690. His estate inventoried £359.

Mary, his widow, married, Jan. 5, 1692, Jedediah Strong, son of Elder John Strong, of Northampton, Mass., to which place she removed, taking with her the two youngest children. She was the third wife of Jedediah Strong; he was born May 7, 1637. She died Oct. 10, 1710, from injuries received by the falling of the horse on which she and her husband were riding, on their way to visit their children at Coventry, Conn. Her husband went to reside with these children, and died at Coventry, May 22, 1733. The "Strong History" says: "he lived with his first wife 19 years, his second wife 7 years, and his third 9 and spent 33 years a widower, and 61 unmarried."

In the old cemetery at Farmington, a few years since, the tombstone of John Lee, was brought to light. It is a coarse, unhewn slab, some two feet in height and eighteen inches wide; the inscription must have been broken out of the stone by a dull tool, driven lengthwise, leaving the letters jagged. William H. Lee, of New York City, with a generosity worthy the name he bears, has had erected in its place a beautiful monument, "executed in Glasgow, Scotland; it is of dark gray Scotch granite, highly polished, standing seventeen feet high upon a base four feet square. The inscription on the old stone has been carefully reproduced on one side of the monument. The name, John Lee, in large block letters on the base is surmounted by the die, upon which are the inscriptions, and above which is the main shaft, of obelisk proportions."

At an adjourned Court held at Hartford, November 5th, 1699.

An Inventory of the estate of JOHN LEE was exhibited in Court, and oath made that there was a true presentation of the estate to the appraisers, so far as at present known, and if more comes to knowledge it shall be added to the Inventory. The Court grants Administration on the estate, to the Widow, and Thomas Porter; we nominate and appoint, Esquire Tho. Hart and John Hart, to be overseers to the estate, widow and children; and divide the estate to the widow a third part of the real during her natural life, and a third part of the personal estate to be at her disposal forever. And to the eldest son a double portion, and to the rest of the children, single portions; and if any decease before they be of age, their portion to be divided between the survivors. Tho. Hart and Thomas Porter we allow to distribute the estate according to law.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE.

FIELD NO. 91

JOHN, OF FARMINGTON.

THIRD GENERATION.

2. JOHN LEE resided at Farmington, and was a man of influence in the Plantation, being annually chosen to offices of honor and trust. "He was street and land surveyor; was one of the committee appointed by the proprietor to treat with the Sachem Mankape, and to obtain his signature to a deed conveying, to them the tract of land named Farmington." He married, Dec. 27, 1682, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Loomis, of Windsor, Conn.; born in 1664. Her mother was Mary, daughter of Deacon Thomas Judd, of Farmington. John Lee united with the Church Nov. 24, 1686; his wife, Jan. 3, 1687. Children:

8. I. JOSE, Born Dec. 7, 1683. Expired Nov. 27, 1686. Supposed to have been young, as he is not named in his father's will.
9. II. JONATHAN, " March 2, 1685. Expired Nov. 27, 1686.
10. III. MARY, " May 13, 1687. " May 1, 1688.
11. IV. EDWARD, " Jan. 1, 1689. " Feb. 6, 1692. Died in infancy.
12. V. SAMUEL, " March 23, 1691. " April 1, 1694.
13. VI. HEZEKIAH, " June 1, 1697. " July 6, 1697.
14. VII. ELIZABETH, " March 6, 1700. " May 1, 1700.
15. VIII. KENNETH, " June 12, 1703. " July 1, 1703.

John Lee died April 24, 1723. His will is dated 1722. He "commits his soul to God, his body to the dust: nothing doubting that he shall receive the same again, by the mighty power of God at the general resurrection. He gives to his wife Elizabeth, one-third of his property for use while she lives. To Jonathan his son 3*s.* only, having given him his share of the property already. To his son Samuel he gives lands. To his daughters Mary Newell, Elizabeth Lankton and Ruth Lee, the sum of £40 in addition to former gifts; and to his daughter Elizabeth Lankton, his great brass kettle, toward her part. To his grandson Nathan Newell, one of his 'Carlashes.' Hezekiah, his youngest son then with him, he makes the executor of this, his last will and testament; and to him he bequeaths to his heirs and assigns forever, the remainder of his estate, real and personal, and at the decease of his wife, all her life interest in his estate." The will was proved in 1723.

FOURTH GENERATION.

9. JONATHAN, son of John 2, was a resident of Kensington, (Christian Lane), and a Deacon of the Congregational Church. He married, June 4, 1713, Mary Root. He died Jan. 16, 1756. His will is dated May 19, 1755. Presented to probate court by John Lee, executor, March 20, 1758. His wife's will is dated Aug. 31, 1704; her son John, executor. She gives "to my daughter Lucee Lee, well-beloved, all my estate wheresoever to be found, and to her heirs forever; she to pay to my son John one hundred and eight pounds (lawful money), worth of my estate, as proved by men under oath; and the like sum, and the like pay, to my daughters now surviving, and to each of their heirs forever." She commends her soul to God, "through Jesus Christ, religiously," and her body to the dust. She died Sept. 14, 1764.

Children

16. I. MARY, born Oct. 4, 1714. Married Andrew Hooker, May 32, 1733.
 17. II. ELLIOTT, " Jan. 13, 1716. " a Hubbard.
 18. III. ELLIOTT, " Jan. 10, 1720. Died Nov. 13, 1779.

 20. V. JOHN, " Apr. 22, 1725.
 21. VI. ELLIOTT, " May 21, 1732. Married 1760, Catharine

10. MARY, eldest daughter of John 2, married July 2, 1713, Thomas Newell. Children:

22. I. MARY, born Nov. 7, 1713.
 23. II. DANIEL, " Feb. 20, 1716.
 24. III. EUNICE, May 28, 1722.
 25. IV. NATHAN, " 1724. Mentioned in his Grandfather's

12. SAMUEL, son of John 2, married Dec. 4, 1713, Eunice Goodwin. He died Sept. 13, 1760. His will is dated Aug. 27, 1760. To his daughter Hannah Andrus, "that lives with me, I give thirty pounds in moveable estate; one-third life interest in real estate of my nephew, Daniel Newell, of Farmington." Unto his wife, Eunice, he gives in the usual form, the remainder of his estate. He makes Eunice, his wife, and Daniel Newell, executors. The will is proved Oct. 7, 1760. It is supposed from the above will that he had but one child, and that she married an Andrus.

13. CAPT. HENRY, youngest son of John 2, married Dec. 23, 1728, Sarah, daughter of Dr. Samuel Porter, of Farmington. He "owned the covenant," and had his children baptized before 1734. He removed from Farmington to Litchfield, from there to Goshen, between July 6, and Oct. 22, 1760. He owned lands in Farmington, Litchfield, Goshen, New Hartford and Harwinton. "He was considered a substantial and reliable man, filling offices of trust in each of the towns where he resided." He died at Harwinton in 1762. His will is dated Dec. 4, 1762. A "Silver-headed Cane" has come down to the compiler of this Genealogy; she being the only surviving child of the youngest son of Dr. Samuel, the youngest son of Hezekiah; he having received it as the youngest son of his father John, the second. It has "H. L." engraved upon the head. Children:

26. I. SAKAH, born Oct. 27, 1729.

27. II. DANIEL, " " 1731, at Farmington. He removed, with his father, to Goshen, and went from there as a commissioned officer into the French war, leaving Farmington with his company, July 12, 1759. He was killed at St. John's. "He was wounded in battle by a tomahawk thrown at him, taken prisoner by the Indians, and tortured to death in the most cruel manner. A fellow-prisoner, who was intended for the next victim, but happily made his escape, was an eye witness of the fearful scene, and brought tidings of his death to the family, at Goshen."

28. III. HEBER, " " 1736.

29. IV. MAKY, " " 1738.

30. V. SAMUEL, " " 1744.

WILL OF HEZEKIAH LEE, OF HARWINTON, CONN.

Mss. 24, 1742.

In the Name of God, Amen.

The last Will and Testament of HEZEKIAH LEE, of Harwinton, Litchfield County, Colony of Connecticut, in New England.

I, Hezekiah Lee, being under indisposition of body, but in sound mind and memory, and sensible of my own mortality, do make this my last Will and Testament, that is to say.

IMOKIMIS. I do give my soul to God, who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be decently buried by Christian friends, not doubting of the resurrection of it at the last day.

And as touching such worldly estate as God has blessed me with, I dispose of the same in manner following:

First. I do give to my wife Sarah Lee, one third part of my moral estate, to be here and at her disposal for ever. I give her, also, the hire and improvement of one third part of my land in Harwinton, with the use also, of one third part of the tithing thereon, during her natural life.

Secondly. I give to my son H. Skellon, 50 my lands lying in the township of New Hartford, to him his and his heirs forever. I give him, also, one fourth part of my tithings, my great Bible, exchequer, wife being to have one eighth part in use during his life, and so forth.

Thirdly. Having given already some of my lands to my daughter who deceased, all that portion that I designed to give her, which I propose to have amounted to four hundred pounds, I do hereby express my mind and say: I give to my daughter Mary Williams, or to her personal heirs of public credit in Connecticut, the said sum with interest, money given her; also, one eighth part of my tithings in New Hartford.

Fourthly. I give to my son Samuel, one hundred acres of land in Harwinton, and the buildings, together with the woods, and during his wife's decease, to be his and his wife's jointure, and after her decease, to be his and his heirs forever. I give him also, my great Bible, and all the remaining part of my estate.

And now having lands in Gosham, with which I shall be a long yet disposed of, my will is that the executors or trustees of my will shall the same and give with it, one half of the said sum, and if there be any debt left of the said after my debts are paid, my will is that it be paid out to purchase land in Harwinton for my son Samuel, so as to make him have one hundred acres of land in Harwinton, or payment to purchase so much, and if there should afterwards be any more left, to be in the hands of the executors or trustees of my will, and to think it.

Having, also, lands in Farmington, and disposed of in this my Will, I give it into the hands and power of the executors to dispose of as they shall think me to be best.

Moreover, I do hereby and appoint my wife Sarah, and my son Samuel, executors of this, my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all in my former Will and Testaments, declaring of them null and void, and pronounce this to be my last Will and Testament, made and dated in Harwinton, the fourth day of July, A. D. 1762.

HEZEKIAH LEE. [SEAL]

Signed, Sealed, pronounced and declared to be the last Will and Testament of Hezekiah
Lee, in presence of
ANDREW BARTHOLOMEW,
ABIJAH CATLING,
EBENEZER LEE.

She united with the Congregational Church at Windham, May 21, 1775. Her mother was Sarah Hart, a great grand-daughter of Stephen, of Farmington. Dr. P. was a man of attractive social qualities, skillful in his profession, and had an extensive practice. He possessed great muscular strength and agility—it has been said he once lifted a new cannon, with nine of the heaviest men of the town in it, by placing himself under the axle—he would hop forty feet at three bounds, and throw a stone a good distance with the precision of the ancient slingers. He entered with great zeal into the struggle for independence; was appointed one of the examining committee on the qualifications of applicants for the "Post of Surgeon" in the army, and was himself in the service until the close of the war. While in the army he became intimately acquainted with Major General Charles Lee, the English officer who served under Washington, and had his head-quarters for a time at Hartford, Conn. His youngest son Charles, he named for General Lee. He died at Windham, Dec. 7, 1825. Children:

112. VIII. MARY F. Oct. 28, 1812.

CAPT. LATHROP was descended in a direct line from Rev. John Lathrop, Pastor of the first Independent Church in England, who came to New England in 1634; was the first minister of the Church at Scituate, Mass., and later at Barnstable. The grandmother of Capt. John was Mercy, daughter of Samuel Baker, of Barnstable, whose mother was Fear Robinson, of Leyden. The mother of Capt. Lathrop was Sybil Backus, daughter of Rev. Samuel Whiting, the first minister of the Congregational Church at Windham, a son of Rev. John Whiting, of Hartford. Mrs. Whiting was the daughter of Rev. Wm. Adams, of Dedham, Mass.; her mother was Alice, daughter of Deputy Governor William Bradford, son of Governor Bradford, of the May Flower; so it can be truly said of him and his descendants that they have a good share of the best Puritan blood in New England.

72. SAMUEL, eldest son of Dr. Samuel Lee 30, of Windham, was a physician and surgeon, practicing with, and succeeding his father. He was the patentee of the "Genuine Lee's Windham Bilious Pills, or Family Physic," an invention of his father's. He obtained a patent signed by Geo. Washington. This was the first medicine of the kind patented in this country, and to this day is extensively known and appreciated as one of the best compounds in use for bilious affections. Dr. Lee, like his father, was a generous, self-sacrificing man; honored in his profession; securing the lasting good will and friendship of all his acquaintance. He married, March

130. III. HENRIETTA LOUISA, " Sept. 26, 1824. Died Oct. 3, 1840.

A sketch of the life and character of Deacon Lee, to whom we are so largely indebted for this Memorial of our family, will not be out of place.

His father died when he was fourteen years of age. After spending a year or two at the "Westfield Academy" in Mass., residing with his uncle, Dr. Joshua Sumner, he was placed in the store of Col. Tinker, at Vernon, Conn., a leading business man in the eastern part of the State. He remained there, gaining a thorough knowledge of mercantile life, until he went into business for himself as a merchant in his native town. In 1822 he commenced the manufacture of cotton yarn, in a mill built by himself on the Willimantic River, in what is now, 1878, the large and flourishing borough of Willimantic. He was the pioneer of manufacturing, and the founder of that pleasant village.

Rev. Dennis Platt, of South Norwalk, Conn., in his "Reminiscences of Deacon Lee," says: "when, in the summer of 1827, I went to Willimantic, with a commission from the 'Home Missionary Society of Connecticut,' to labor in that village, I found Deacon Lee earnestly engaged in his business of manufacturing, and leading all the public improvements then going on. How he managed to superintend his large business, and yet preserve that settled calmness, which was his prominent characteristic, was to me a matter of special wonder. When the labors of the day were ended, he threw off all care, and was as genial in his family, and as sociable with his neighbors, and as ready for the evening meeting—in which he always took part—as if he had nothing to trouble him; indeed, so perfect was his command, that he could sleep at night, after a day's harassing business, as most men do who have nothing to think of but their daily tasks. He had a sound mind in a sound healthy body, and was admirably fitted for the position he occupied as leading, moral, and prominent member of society. At this time he was a regular member and also Deacon of the Congregational Church at Wingham; his services there were much needed and highly appreciated. He had his horses and carriage and could take his family the three or four half miles with little inconvenience, but he saw the necessity to the people around him, and felt the necessity of religious influences at Wilmantic, not only for his own people, but also for those belonging to the other manufactory—the Fall Spring, or Iron Works. Without a moment's hesitation, he gave his whole energies to the work, and never faltered or grew discouraged until the time was accomplished. There was at that time no meeting place in the place; no organized Church of any denomination, not even a Sabbath School; but there were two school-houses open to religious instruction.

"Arrangements were made for a day, these two churches of the congregation was soon gathered, and after a few months the Congregational Church organized, of which Deacon Lee was the first pastor.

Then it was proposed to build a house of worship. Deacon Lee gave the land, adding a generous subscription, and by his untiring, earnest efforts, the work was accomplished. The result of these ten years of labor, and of self-sacrifice, was a Church of five members, a flourishing Sabbath School, and a large congregation. Deacon Lee has gone to his rest. If he looks back from the "beyond shore," to review the history of his labors, he must see that his two years of labor in founding the Church at Wilmantic were the most productive of his life."

The prostration in the manufacturing business, consequent upon the financial crisis of 1826 led him to abandon the business in which he was engaged at Wilmantic, and remove to Norwich in the spring

f 1831. He was first book-keeper for the firm of Gilman & Ripley, Druggists, and later, secretary of the "Chelsea Manufacturing Co.," whose paper works were at Greenville, continuing in that office until about three years before his death, when the corporation ceased to exist. In 1842 the firm of Lee & Osgood, Druggists, was formed, of which he was senior partner. "As a business man Deacon Lee was upright, straightforward, and honest; very methodical and precise, with a clear head and most excellent judgment. An infirmity in his hearing debarred him from taking part in public gatherings, but he was very warmly interested in all that pertained to the welfare of the nation or the general good of society; exercising, in his earnest, quiet way, an influence that was felt by all around him. As a friend and neighbor he was warm-hearted and sincere; his genial manners, and unobtrusive kindness of heart, made those his strongest friends who knew him best. As a Christian, he was revered and honored in all the Churches with which he was connected.

At an early age he was "hopefully converted to God," and united with the Church in Vernon, commencing at once to labor for his Master, and ceasing not from such labors until he "entered into rest;" his Christian character growing brighter and brighter as he neared the "other shore." His deafness prevented him from hearing the voices of his Pastor and Brethren in the Church, but his seat was never vacant in the "house of God," or in the prayer meeting, except by reason of sickness or absence from home; he was in all respects a worthy descendant of good Deacon Hart, and John Lee. He died at his home in Norwich, Oct. 25, 1865, aged 75 years.

SEVENTH GENERATION.

82 REV. SAMUEL, son of Samuel 49, of Kensington, Conn., was born March 18, 1803, "on the 31st day of the same month his father died."

In June, 1812, his mother married Nathan Boardman, of Westbury, taking with her to her new home this son, where he lived until he entered Yale College, in 1814. He graduated in 1817, going directly from the academic to the theological department, in the same institution. From the Seminary he went to Sherburne, Mass., where he was ordained Pastor of the Evangelical Church, Nov. 4, 1819. He was called to the Church in New Ipswich, N. H., on the same strength of his reputation, they having never seen him; he visited them, accepted the call, and was installed May 5, 1820. His health, weakened by excessive toils, and the pressure of crushing responsibilities, he resigned his pastorate. After some years' idleness, however, he so far regained his health that he gave his attention to writing. The results are given to the public.

Of Mr. Lee, in his professional capacity, two prominent characteristics may be named. The first, his power of easy and confident extemporaneous preaching. As a consequence he was sought out very extensively by his brethren in protracted religious meetings. It is doubted if any other Pastor in New England exerted so great an amount of such labor, and this with the care of his increasing flock and parish on his hands. These labors were often attended with marked success. Under one sermon, preached in Rindge, N. H., forty persons were hopefully converted to God.

Second, his style, and his theme. In the earlier period of his ministry he wrote often for the periodical press. Among these productions of his pen were several articles in the religious quarterly, "The Old and New Testaments Compared," "The Bible Doctrine of Divorce," "The Formation of Ministerial Associations." Several pamphlets on doctrinal and other subjects, as "The Sinner Directed Quite to Christ," a sermon preached before the "General Association of Massachusetts." A "Historical Discourse," preached at the Centennial of the Church in New Ipswich. At a later period he published two volumes, the results of a more careful study of the Bible, and synthesis of its truths. The first volume, "Eschatology," referred to the Resurrection and its cognate truths. The Resurrection is the life after death. The Judgment is the verdict which the gospel of Christ is passing upon us continually. Matt. 25: 31-46. Referring to Christ as administering his gracious government over the human race; the coming of the "Son of Man" is the appearing of the Messiah to establish that government, and to be distinguished from the "Appearing of the Lord," by which is denoted the manifestation of the glorified Saviour as effected by the constitutional change in the believer at death. "Eschatology" has been made a text book by Prof. (now President) Porter, of Yale College, in the Theological department. A few years later he published a volume named "The Bible Regained."

Early in life Mr. Lee consecrated himself to God, on the theory that religion was service rendered to Him who is saving the world. He united with the Congregational Church in Westfield, Nov. 21, 1817. His studies, from the first, had reference to the Christian ministry. In the discharge of the duties of the sacred office, he evinced his "ruling passion."

Rev. Mr. Lee married, Nov. 3, 1834, Emily, daughter of Deacon Samuel Fiske, of Natick, Mass., born Sept. 22, 1810, died March 5, 1843. He married, Jan. 14, 1846, Lydia Coggsell, daughter of Hon. Paul Wentworth, of Concord, N. H., born July 21, 1816, died March 6, 1855. He married, June 3, 1850, Mary Jane, widow of Rev. D. P. Smith, and daughter of Hon. Samuel Chandler, of Bedford, N. H. JOHN LEE I.

III D GENERATION.

4. STEPHEN, son of JOHN, the emigrant, was the owner of that portion of the original tract of land called, in 1750, "Great Swamp;" in 1750, Kensington; and in 1754, New Ball. He received a grant from the town in January, 1689, "that he should have land on the west rly. side of the highway, (provided a deduction in the former grants), and the waiting place; he had to go within four years, or else it is to return to the town again." In March following, "the Court" was obliged to, "let him have Stephen Lee's lot, as near as they can, according to grant." He built a house on East Street, next north of the one afterward built by his son, Deacon Josiah. This house was taken down in 1834. The house of his son, Josiah, is still standing, 1877. Kensington was made an independent Society about 1758. A Church was organized in 1710, and in 1712, Rev. Mr. Burham settled over the Society. At the time of his settlement there were but thirteen families in the place; the Church consisted of ten members. At the head of the list stand Stephen Lee and wife, they having united with the Church in Farmington, Oct. 5, 1709. Stephen was a farmer, all the middle and last of life called Captain. He married, October 1, 1695, Elizabeth Royce, of Wallingford, Conn., daughter of "Isaac and Elizabeth Lathrop, his wife." He died June 7, 1753, aged 87. A red sand-stone, in the old cemetery at "Great Swamp," marks his last resting place. At the time of his death, his name stood at the head of "Petition to the General Court of Connecticut for a new Society in the part of Kensington, to be called New Britain." The following May it was granted. The wife of Stephen Lee died May 2, 1760, aged 91 years, and was buried in the new cemetery at New Britain. Children:

Dr. Isaac Lee, of Middletown, on the first of February, 1755, deeded to Farmington, "for a highway, three pieces of land: one piece butting east with the highway that runs past the house where my son, Stephen, now dwells; south, on land conveyed to the Town by my brother, Josiah; north, on my own land, and from said highway one-half a mile and six rods long, and one rod wide." "This shall be the lane past the burying ground." His brother, Josiah, deeded the other half for a double purpose: to lead to the meeting house, and to the "burying yard." The meeting house was not built until 1776, though the land had been for a part long in possession. "The oldest grave in the yard is 1759."

Dr. Isaac Lee and his wife, Sarah Leah, after their return from Middletown, sold, for £400 10s 10d., and, "for love, love and compassion, Isaac and Stephen, the homestead (Dr. Lee and wife) were possessed and live in, with the buildings, also, all our real estate in Farmington, to be so divided as to make them equal, reserving to ourselves during life, the annual interest of the house and farm and the rent between the meeting house road and the oxen pastures, within half of the orchard, and grass enough to keep 20 cows and 100 sheep."

14. Josiah, youngest son of Stephen 4, married, Nov. 12, 1737, Hannah Warren, of Glastenbury, Conn. His father gave to him "for parental love, and to his wife, Hannah Warren, half his orchard, lying-house to be the north-half, and half of the town, within said orchard, with the use of the apple." He says, "It is understood that my son, Josiah, is bound to the French expedition to our northern enemies, the French; if my accident shall hinder his return no more, his wife is to have full liberty to use and enjoy the premises so long as she remain his widow." See also STEPHEN LEE, "Farmington Records of 1764, Apr. 13, 1747."

Captain Lee returned safely. "He was chosen, April 1, 1763, second Deacon of Dr. Smalley's Church, in place of Deacon Patterson, who died at Havana, with one third of his company and seven fever. W. H. T. C. N. 2

The power of Colonel Lee, from early life, and the confidence reposed in him, are abundantly founded in the records of the Town Church and State. As a citizen, he exercised more influence in the public and social affairs, and for years they were largely entrusted to his management. He was the principal magistrate for thirty years, and his impartiality and wisdom were universally acknowledged. Controversies arising before him were submitted to his judgment, and so great was the confidence reposed in his intelligence, unswerving integrity and straightforwardness, that he was universally respected for his fair and honest dealing.

Col. Lee's influence was not confined to the town. His name was largely felt in the councils of the Colony and the State. He was, with the exception of four years, a member of the Council of the Colony, and of the State, from 1761 to 1775. He was a representative of the General Assembly of the State from its first session, in 1775, until 1784, with the exception of the year 1779, and 1780. He was a member of the Association which, headed by Gov. Jonathan Trumbull on October 3, 1776, met in Hartford, October 3, 1776, and took the "Oath of Fidelity and Allegiance" to the new Government of the United States, and, upon the adoption of the Constitution, he was a delegate from the town of Berlin to the convention that met in Hartford, January 1788, for its ratification. During all this important service, he Colonia, and State history Col. Lee held relations of friendship and intimacy with the leading patriots of the day, and shared with them the labor and responsibility of moulding our civil institutions. Col. Lee was also identified with the military organization of the Colony, receiving his commission as Captain in May, 1767; the record being: "This Assembly do establish Mr. Isaac Lee, Jr., to be Captain of the Thirteenth Company of the Train Band, in the Sixth Regiment, in this Colony." In October, 1767, he was appointed Lieutenant Colonel; and in March, 1775, Colonel of the Fifteenth Regiment. In 1776, at the age of 60, he resigned his commission, asking the Assembly not to reappoint him.

Col. Lee was for many years a Deacon in the Congregational Church and contributed largely to its prosperity. In 1754, a portion of the town of Berlin became a separate society, and Col. Lee gave to it the name of New Britain, in honor of Great Britain, the home of his ancestors.

The manners of Colonel Lee were courtly and dignified; his presence, tall and commanding; and his dress that of the dignitaries of Colonial times, viz: a cocked hat, white wig, blue coat with metal buttons, white cravat, black velvet breeches with silver knee-buckles, white silk stockings and shoes with large silver buckles. "He was one of the two men in New Britain—Rev. Dr. Smalley being the other—who were treated with the utmost reverence. When he was approaching or passing, all hats were doffed, even by men laboring in the fields some distance from the road."

In the early part of his life feats of strength, and performances showing great agility and powers of endurance were the pastimes and customs of the times. Young Lee was of herculean strength, and gained a wide reputation for his successes with the champions of the day.

"He died in 1802, leaving a name of which his descendants may justly be proud, and a patrimony unusually large for that time."

REFERENCES AND NOTES

44 THOMAS, son of Isaac 32, married, Oct. 10, 1797, Electa, daughter of John and Huldah Porter Riley, of Northampton, Mass. She was the mother of all his children; a woman of more than ordinary decision of character and influence. She was born Dec. 13, 1776. Died Dec. 5, 1826. He married, Feb. 2, 1831, Laura, daughter of Martin Kellogg, of Newington, Conn., and widow of Asaph Whittlesey. She died Feb. 7, 1837, aged 52. His third wife was Esther, daughter of John Meigs, of Middletown, and widow of Solomon Lusk, of New Britain. She died Mar. 18, 1865, aged 74.

Thomas and Isaac were among the earliest manufacturers in the (then) village of New Britain. They subsequently built and opened the first merchandizing store there. Thomas was representative of the town of Berlin in the State Legislature several sessions, magistrate, judge of probate, post-master, and always an active politician. He died Aug. 20, 1840. Children:

- 70. I. MINERVA, born Apr. 22, 1798.
- 71. II. LORINZO PORTER, " Apr. 12, 1800.
- 72. III. THEIZA, " Mar. 19, 1801. Married, Sept. 20, 1819, Rev. David Tilton, of Gloucester, Mass.; a lady of literary attainments, and lovely Christian character. She died Jan. 6, 1877. Buried at Mt Auburn by the side of her brother, Dr. Thomas G. Lee.
- 73. I. JOHN RILEY, " Apr. 22, 1804. Graduated at Yale College in 1826; studied medicine, practicing in New Britain. He held, for several years, the office of "Resident Physician," in the "State Lunatic Hospital," at Worcester, Mass. Resides at Hartford, Conn., 1878.

Graduated at the "Yale Medical School," in 1830. Subsequently studied medicine with Dr. Todd, of Hartford, Conn.; was "Assistant Physician" in the "Retreat for the Insane" there; afterwards became Superintendent and Physician of the "McLean

"a. That the thanks of the Board presented to Dr. Woodward and family for their kindness and assiduous attention to Dr. LEE, during the illness which terminated in his death.

Attest,

WM. GRAY, Secretary."

By a Comtee.

"But a few weeks since Dr. LEE seemed the child of a happy and prosperous fortune. We know no one upon whom the present was bestowing more of enjoyment, or the future was opening with brighter and surer hopes of honorable fame and usefulness. Elevated at the early age of twenty-six to the responsible station of Superintendent and Physician of the McLean Asylum for the Insane, near Boston, enjoying the fullest confidence of the friends and Trustees of that institution; by the extended usefulness which his more successful treatment of mental disease gave to its operations, gathering, already, a rich harvest of professional reputation, by his success in one its most difficult departments of practice; happy in the love and esteem of a large and enlarging circle of friends, and thrice happy in his domestic relations, he seemed altogether fortunate in the enjoyment of worthy objects upon which to exhaust the fulness of his enthusiastic mind and soul. But death has surprised him in the midst of his usefulness and happiness, and laid low the object of our pride, our hopes, and our love.

"Feeling somewhat indisposed, and hoping to shake off any disease by a temporary suspension of his labors, he left Charlestown to visit his father, Judge Lee, in Berlin, and his friends in this city. He spent the Sabbath of the 16th of October with his friend, Dr. Woodward, at Worcester, and was well enough in the morning to accompany him in his daily visit through the hospital. In the evening he retired to bed with decided symptoms of typhus fever, which in thirteen days terminated in his death.

"From the first, Dr. Woodward apprehended the fatal result, and summoned to his bedside his wife, from Charlestown, and his brother, Dr. Lee, from New Britain. If medical skill, and the gentle mastering of unsleeping and unwearied love could have availed anything to arrest the progress of disease, Dr. LEE would have been restored to the theatre of his usefulness, and the arms of his kindred and friends. But it was otherwise ordered cut off in the midst of a bright career of usefulness; but not would he had nurtured the plan which has done so much for the sons and daughters of affliction.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord;" and many a blessing has doubtless followed this benevolent man—this beloved physician—from those who experienced the kindness of his heart, and received the benefits of his skill."

8. JARED, eldest son of Thomas Lee 5, married, Jan. 5, 1735, Rhoda, daughter of John Judd, of Farmington, Conn. She was burned to death by her clothes taking fire, Feb. 12, 1771. He married, Sept. 4, 1771, Elizabeth Hall. He owned a farm nine miles south of his father, in what is now Southington. He was Deacon of the Congregational Church, the first "Justice of the Peace"—an office of some note at that time. Some of his dockets, in his own handwriting, are still in existence, extending back over a hundred years; they are in the possession of a great-granddaughter, Mrs. Dr. Hart, of Southington, 1878. An ancient law book published in England over a hundred years ago, is in the family of Barzillai Lee, of Southington, 1878. He filled so many offices of honor and trust in the town, the people called him "all Southington." One of his descendants says: "He was a very homely, and a very silent man." He died in 1780. 15. SEYM, eldest son of Deacon Jared 8, was born in Farmington; graduated at Yale College in 1750, was tutor there for four years. "One class gave him, as a token of their respect, a gold ring." This ring is still in the possession of the family. Another class gave him a "morning gown," of the choicest goods of the day, besides other testimonials of their love and respect. From New Haven he went to study theology with Rev. Dr. Bellamy. He was licensed to preach, supplied several pulpits, received a number of "calls," but it does not appear that he ever took a charge. His father gave him a "five-acre lot in Farmington, twenty-five rods north of the meeting house;" there he kept "tavern" and an apothecary's store until June 2, 1796, when he removed to Ludlow, Vt., upon land of which he was the original owner, having obtained the grant from Benning Wentworth, the British Governor of New Hampshire. "He used here his influence and his talents to establish a religious and moral state of society." He married, Sept. 3, 1767, Sarah, daughter of Rev. Jonathan Ingersoll, of Ridgefield, Conn., born Oct. 28, 1741, died July 17, 1770. He married Sept. 9, 1771, Joanna, daughter of Daniel Johnson, of Wallingford, Conn., born Apr. 4, 1743. Mr. Leonard Lee

From the Kenosha Telegraph-Courier,
February 5th, 1903.

Mr. Leonard Lee, whose death occurred at Omaha, Neb., Monday, Feb. 2, and whose burial took place in this city Tuesday last, was born March 5, 1820, in Southington, Conn. He was thus almost 83 years of age at the time of his death. He was the son of Mr. Orren Lee, the third of six children, only one of whom, a younger sister, Mrs. Cornelia Butts, of Manlius, N. Y., survives him. He was of the seventh generation from John Lee, who, as a young man, emigrated from Essex county, England, in 1634, settling finally, in 1641, in Farmington, a few miles from Hartford, Conn. While yet a lad of six years Leonard's parents moved from Southington to Manlius, (near Syracuse) N. Y. Here he grew to manhood, receiving a liberal education.

He was married April 11, 1844, to Miss Sophia A. Cook, a native of Manlius, and who was a lineal descendant of William Westwood, the guardian of John Lee, the young emigrant of 1634. On her father's side she was descended from Huguenot stock. Having decided to make their home in the West, the newly married couple at once moved to Kenosha—then Southport—Wis., and established themselves on the open prairie, in a fine location, some three or four miles west of the town, in Somers township. Here Mr. Lee improved an extensive farm, than which none in the vicinity was better kept. Here also five children were born, four of whom are still living. Hattie, the only daughter, died in 1879.

Mr. Lee's interest in education and his desire to give his children a good start, led to persistent and successful efforts on his part toward bringing up the district school of the neighborhood to a high standard of efficiency. This standard was maintained for a number of years. Probably no similar school in the county at that time had a better equipment in library and apparatus, or had better teachers than District No. 2, Somers. Among the teachers for a single year was Mr. Robert Graham, who was afterwards connected with the Normal school at Oshkosh, and later was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State. Owing largely to the impetus they here received, not a few pupils of this school were afterward led to pursue advanced courses of study elsewhere.

During the civil war Mr. Lee enlisted in a company from Kenosha—Co. C, 39th Regiment—in which he was a Sergeant. The company was commanded by Captain Robert Graham, and First Lieut.—now United States Senator—J. V. Quarles. For several years past he has been a member of the Fred S. Lovell Post, G. A. R. at Kenosha.

In 1867, having disposed of his farm, Mr. Lee moved to Kenosha and engaged in manufacturing pursuits,—first as proprietor of the Kenosha Flax Mills, which burned in 1872, and subsequently as Vice President and Manager of the Philips Furniture Manufacturing Co. He built him a home on Prairie avenue, which he sold later to Captain Charles Palmatier. In 1871 he made an extended tour of Europe, Egypt and Palestine, such tours being much less common then than now. His weekly letters to the Kenosha Telegraph, recording his impressions and describing, in fresh and racy style, things seen and incidents of travel, were widely read and awakened no little interest. After the death of his wife in 1890 and the consequent breaking up of the home, he devoted much time to travel, mostly in this country. His winters were spent mainly at the South, either in Florida or California. He visited both Cuba and Mexico, and from time to time contributed interesting letters to his home paper. His summers have been spent either with friends at the East, or at Kenosha, or with his sons.

Genealogical Researches and Authorship.

Mr. Lee early became interested in the subject of the genealogy of the Lee family, and for many years made it a special study. Whenever opportunity presented, he made investigations, and in this way a large amount of valuable data was at length accumulated. Considerable progress had already been made by others at the East who were interested in the subject, and a small volume, compiled by Miss Sarah M. Lee, of Norwich, Conn., embodying the results of investigations up to that time, was published in 1878. But the need of a larger and more complete work was felt in growing degree by many of the Lee kindred, and Mr. Lee—his fitness for the difficult task being recognized—was solicited to undertake it. To these solicitations he finally yielded. The new work was to be based upon the one which had already been issued, and was to embody the latest fruits of his own and others' researches, particularly those of the Hon. Wm. Wallace Lee, of Meriden, Conn., who had written an account of the Lee family gathering of 1834 at some length, and who had always been zealous in these genealogical investigations. Mr. Lee was ably assisted by Miss Sarah Fiske Lee, of New Ipswich, N. H., but his was the main responsibility, and to this special work of arranging and verifying the large amount of accumulated material and of putting all in shape for publication, he devoted himself with an absorbing interest and with characteristic energy. To complete it many months of continuous and close application were required.

In the meantime, (1896) a second reunion of the descendants of John Lee was held at Farmington, Conn., in the arrangements for which Mr. Lee was one of the prime movers. At this meeting provision was made for the publication of the book, which was then nearing completion. It was issued in 1897 under the title of "John Lee, of Farmington, Conn., and his Descendants," a volume of 600 pages, containing over 4000 names, together with a report of the reunion of the year before. It represented patient, painstaking labor, investigations of records, correspondence and travel, such as only those can appreciate who have engaged in similar undertakings. With him, however, it was a labor of love. The book contains a mass of most interesting and valuable information with reference to the genealogy of the family, and will stand as a monument of his devotion to its interests. It has been quite widely circulated among the descendants of John Lee, and has found a place in numerous reference libraries East and West. Two or three years later, in 1900, a supplementary volume of nearly 200 pages, also compiled by Mr. Lee, was issued,—the continued researches of himself and others having resulted in the collection of much additional genealogical information and nearly 1,000 more names of descendants residing in different parts of this country, North and South, and in Canada.

Character, Citizenship, Final Illness.

In character Mr. Lee was a man of the highest moral integrity. In business his dealings were always on the square. It was his constant aim literally to "owe no man anything." He was a man of exceptional energy and of untiring industry. He was always interested in public affairs, although he never sought and seldom held public office. Although always a regular attendant upon and supporter of the Congregational church of Kenosha, he did not formally unite with it until rather late in life. His early education was supplemented by extensive reading, a habit which was continued all his life, and by his observations in travel, in which his habit of keen observation and his retentive memory served him to the best advantage. By these means he became an unusually well informed man. He was of an exceedingly practical turn of mind, very methodical, and always made his plans far ahead. He was frugal and temperate in his habits, was a man of strong will, was possessed of a deep-seated sense of justice and right, was intense in his convictions, and was especially impatient at all manifestations of injustice and wrong. Although not demonstrative, he was strongly attached to his family and to his friends, of whom he made many wherever he went. All the kindred who have known him—and his genealogical investigations brought him in contact with many scattered all over the country—speak of him in warmest terms. He was a man of exceptional physical elasticity and vigor, and this was characteristic of him up to the time of his last illness. Few would have suspected from his appearance that he had reached the advanced age which he did. He was correspondingly vigorous mentally, and his mind was clear almost to the last.

During all his absences of the past ten or a dozen years from Kenosha he remained loyal to the place which was so long his home, of which he was one of the early settlers, and in whose welfare he was always interested. Whenever it was practicable he always returned to cast his vote in the local or national elections. Wherever he went he always had his local paper, the Telegraph Courier, of which, under its different names, he had been a subscriber for over fifty years, sent to him. In this way he constantly kept himself in touch with what was transpiring at home. It was with extreme regret that owing to his illness he was unable to visit the city last summer, especially to be present at the Old Settlers' picnic of the county. Very likely he had a premonition that this might be his last opportunity of meeting his old associates and friends.

The illness which finally resulted in his death was contracted nearly a year ago while in Florida. Recovering sufficiently to travel, he started northward, and was barely able to reach Clinton, Iowa, where friends were awaiting him. From that time, from a complication of difficulties, mainly of the heart, his condition was practically hopeless, although with his remarkable vitality he rallied surprisingly after relapses and setbacks, when attending friends and even physicians had given up all hope. He was able to be taken to Omaha, Neb., last September, where he remained until his death with his youngest son, Mr. Charles R. Lee. His other sons are: Rev. Lucius O. Lee, D. D., Marash, Turkey; Rev. Frank T. Lee, Chicago, and Mr. Herbert M. Lee, of Kausas City, Mo.

He fully realized that recovery was impossible and that his end was not far distant. With characteristic forethought he gave various directions in regard to private matters and to his burial, and finally met death calmly, passing away last Monday morning. He will be missed by many friends in different parts of the land. He leaves not a few friends in this city and vicinity, although the neighbors and associates of his earlier and middle life have quite largely passed away.

The funeral services were held at the Congregational church at a late hour Tuesday afternoon. They were conducted by Rev. J. L. Hewitt, D. D. The interment was in the family lot in the city cemetery.

Among those present at the funeral from a distance were: Rev. F. T. Lee, wife and son, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Lee, of Omaha; Mrs. G. W. Allen and Mrs. C. D. May, nieces, of Clinton, Ia.

Our copies have not been in vain, and we are now able, after the work has been put in the hands of the printer, to furnish authentic and conclusive evidence that JOHN LEE was from Colchester.

Through the agency of Mr. William Wallace Lee we have a family record and genealogy, prepared by his ancestor, Seth Lee (15), a great-grandson of the settler, who was twenty-three years of age when David (16), the youngest son of John (1), died. The paper, in its original manuscript, is mostly genealogical items of that branch of the family, and from the quotations given below, it becomes apparent was written for posterity.

"KEEP SACRED THE MEMORY OF YOUR ANCESTORS."

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE LEE OF FARMINGTON, TAKEN DOWN ABOUT 1840, BY SETH LEE, A M., AND RECORDED BY MISS LEE.

"JOHN LEE (1) was sent by his father from Colchester, England, to America with the early emigrants to this country. His father designed following with the rest of his family, but, for some reason, never came, and it is said John never heard much of them.

"Perhaps he may have come to America as early as 1630, or before, and to this town, (Farmington) in 1631 or '32.[†]

"His homestead,[‡] after his death, was inherited by his son John (2), who lived there during his life, when it descended to Hezekiah (13), youngest son of John (2). Hezekiah then sold the 'Lee House,' about 1750 or '60, to Elijah Cowles, who now occupies it; removing with his family to Goshen, Litchfield County, where he died in 1792."

Then follows a record of his marriage, and the succession, in a disconnected form, all of which is in its proper order in this book.

The question of his nativity being settled, there remain the two following queries, of great interest to us all, and which, if solved, will give new matter to whoever may undertake to complete this imperfect genealogy.

*Who was born 1760.

†He left England in 1633 or '34, and settled in Farmington in 1641.

‡The house stood where it now, 1875, "Miss Porter's School for Young Ladies."

$P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 0$ with $0 \leq t \leq W$. On the other hand, if $\text{Index}(t) = 0$, then $P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 1$ and we can show his result by induction. On the other hand, if $\text{Index}(t) = 1$, then $P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 0$ and we can show his result by induction.

So, if $\text{Index}(t) = 0$, then $P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 1$ and we can show his result by induction. On the other hand, if $\text{Index}(t) = 1$, then $P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 0$ and we can show his result by induction. So, if $\text{Index}(t) = 0$, then $P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 1$ and we can show his result by induction. On the other hand, if $\text{Index}(t) = 1$, then $P(x, t, \text{Index}(t)) = 0$ and we can show his result by induction.

Descendants of John Lee,

Farmington, Conn.

(Prospectus.)

In September last, a circular was sent out, announcing that a new edition of "John Lee and His Descendants" was nearly ready for the press. The work is now quite ready, and its publication contracted for, with a prospect that it will be ready for distribution within a few weeks.

This work is the result of extended researches through public and church records of not less than twelve towns in Connecticut, besides five or six in Massachusetts and Vermont; more than thirty-five ancient cemeteries have been visited to collect data from headstones, and an extended correspondence has been carried on with kindred and others in more than thirty States, besides Ontario and England. In addition to this more than fifty homes have been visited in twenty different States, besides Ontario, to collect family records and other information. Many facts bearing on family history have been obtained, and many families have been discovered, which had been lost sight of more than one hundred years, and their records obtained.

It will comprise, among other historical facts, brief mention of ten or twelve other New England families of the same name, the Virginia family and the Lees of English history, and the orthography of the name; a full list, as far as could be obtained, of soldiers furnished by the family for the French and Revolutionary wars, war of 1812-15, and the late Civil war, both Federal and Confederate. A special effort has been made to collect personal military records, whenever obtainable, and the battles in which individuals were engaged, which will prove to be of great interest.

A. Lee & Son - Publisher

July 20 1884

The list of more than fifty Revolutionary ancestors will prove of special interest to those who are looking up their eligibility to the Sons or Daughters of the Revolution.

It will also contain sketches of William Westwood, the guardian of John Lee; Stephen Hart, father of Mary Hart Lee, and John Lee, and inventory of their estates: also, a large number of personal sketches of representative Lees, both of past and present generations; the portraits of a large number, and the names of more than 4,000 descendants of John Lee; a cut of the modern monument of John Lee, and a fac-simile of the ancient crude headstone will also adorn the work.

It has required many months of close application by the compilers to prepare the result of their research and correspondence for publication, for which they neither ask nor expect any pecuniary remuneration—only the satisfaction of having rescued their family history from oblivion before it was too late, and placing it within reach of all the descendants. Several hundred dollars have also been expended in travel and other incidentals.

At the late reunion held at Farmington, August 12 and 13, steps were taken to publish this volume under the auspices of the "Lee Association." A reorganization was effected, the officers of which were:

President —	JAMES T. LEE,	- - -	New Britain, Conn.
Vice President —	SARAH F. LEE,	- - -	New Ipswich, N. H.
" "	LEONARD LEE,	- - -	Kenosha, Wis.
" "	GEORGE H. LEE,	- - -	Bridgeport, Conn.
" "	EDWIN LEE HEATH,	- - -	Brantford, Ont.
Secretary and Treasurer —	WILLIAM WALLACE LEE,		Meriden, Conn.
Assistant Secretary —	LEONARD LEE,		Kenosha, Wis.

It required a substantial guarantee fund to enable the committee to defray the expense of publication. The limited circulation of works of this kind materially increases the cost over other works of the same size, but it is believed that, by economy, it can be published in an attractive and substantial binding, ready for circulation, for $5.00 per copy, and will be found well worth the cost.

Extra expenses have been incurred to obtain maps, cuts, etc., which were not included in the original estimates, but the price of the work will not be increased.

Liberal donations have been made by individuals, and a large number of advance subscriptions received, but not yet sufficient to defray the entire expense of publication, the deficiency of which will fall upon the committee, unless otherwise provided for.

It is proposed to publish the names of donors and subscribers, which are received in time. All drafts, Post Office or Express orders may be made payable to the order of William Wallace Lee, Secretary and Treasurer.

Please fill out the enclosed slip, detach from this sheet and return to William Wallace Lee, Secretary and Treasurer, Meriden, Conn.
